WARM Program offers free insulation assistance

Metropolitan Edison Company's (Met-Ed) WARM Program has been saving energy and money for families with a limited income since 1985. The Program is available to both home owners and renters (landlord permission needed).

The WARM program helps limited income families to reduce their winter electricity bills. To qualify, families must be Met-Ed customers, live in a electrically heated home or have an electric water heater, and have annual income of not more than: 1 person, $9,420; 2 persons, $12,630; 3 persons, $15,840; 4 persons, $19,050; 5 persons, $22,260; 6 persons, $25,470; 7 persons, $28,680; 8 persons, $31,890; 9 persons, $35,100; 10 persons, $38,310.

WARM can provide free insulation, caulking and weatherstripping of doors and windows. If the customer's home is electrically heated, WARM will also provide a water-saving shower head and water heater pipe insulation. To determine what improvements will be made, a Met-Ed representative will schedule an appointment to inspect the home.

All work is completed at no cost to the customer. Another program which helps families with limited income save on their winter heating bills is the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), which is also available to home owners and renters.

LIHEAP is a federally funded program administered by the State of Pennsylvania. To qualify, families must fall into the same annual income requirements as with the WARM program.
